

A parabolic cooker

A mobile phone charging station in a solar kiosk's kitchen area

Solar Energy Kiosks

Made for remote villages, the kiosks are bistros offering food (the kitchen also features a freezer), a mobile phone charging stations, and a TV set for public viewing. They are run by a "grand maire solaire" and have an important social in encouraging social contacts

Workshops with groups of women

learning to cook with a solar oven, «Papillon» parabolic cookers and «Foyers améliorés» (improved wood stoves); here in the courtyard of Fatoumata Traoré

Women community gardens with solar pumps («forages»). Irrigation makes it possible to grow vegetables and thus generate income all year round. Image: Initiant Fatoumata Traoré at the fence of the Rehobot school garden

The Emmaus school building with freshly planted trees

Workshop for portable "foyers améliorés" in the courtyard of Fatoumata Traore

The orphanage Le Nid now benefits from solar lighting

Solar kiosk in Songo2
Literacy course for young people

Lighting for social institutions such as churches, schools, outpatient clinics, orphanages- Solar lighting in the church of Dinderesso

Eiisabeth Bado, President of the Widows' Association, in a bissap field, ready to inspect newly planted trees

Two bissap flowers for tea or syrup production

The widows' association takes care of its Zebu herd; the dung will go to a biogas plant

Various vocational training courses are offered to inmates of the juvenile prison

Solar installation in the Catholic center of Kouentou, installed by Solafrique (2016)

Water transport for the Emmaus local school in Bobo-Dioulasso

Drilling for a solar water pump in the Guénon school garden

The school garden at the Guénon Lyceum gets a solar pump

Pupils at the Guénon Lyceum give a nurse homemade soap to support mothers in the maternity hospital

The Guénon Maternity Hospital and Outpatient Clinic (CSPS) have been given solar lighting

Biscuit production in Mrs. Veronique Somé's solar oven

Mr. Asso demonstrating the use of a solar furnace in Koudougou

Workshop for building wood solar ovens for the woman members of Notre Soleil

Visit to the godchildren